Statesville, NC I just got a Case 850D dozer to use for some field maintenance. It has a 6 way blade. I will be leveling some old terraces, putting in waterways, and cleaning up some fence lines and edges of fields. It hasn't been ran much in several years, but only has 2800 hours. I'm doing some maintenance and checking it over. I have no operating experience, but will take it slow and easy for a while. The Case controls seem a little different than some, as it has pedals, and powershift levers. I have the manual. It can be driven by the pedals, or by speeding up or slowing down one side with the powershift levers. Anyone have any experience on one, and have any tips or tricks to using it. Also, it is a very early 5.9 Cummins. I've heard of the dowel pin issue. Would this be something to check for on this machine.
